Other Teaching

I have convened 3 undergraduate courses at ANU without teaching in them: convening in these circumstances involves arranging for PhD students to teach the courses and staying in touch with them about any challenges that arise. I convened PHIL1005 Logic and Critical Thinking in semester 2 2012; PHIL2082 Philosophy of Biology in semester 2 2013, and PHIL1004 Fundamental Ideas in Philosophy in semester 1 2014.

Basic Logic (a remedial logic course for M. Litt students) (F2004 University of St Andrews)
 Masters Qualifying course on Laws of Nature (August-December 1997 Macquarie University)

Supervision and Individual Teaching

Chair of committee (i.e. supervisor) of five PhD students at ANU: one PhD from September 2011 to August 2014, on the metaphysics of time, a second from November 2011 to September 2014 on modal epistemology (now submitted as MPhil thesis), a third from February 2012 on theories of mental content, a fourth from March 2012 on meta-ethics, and a fifth from May 2013 on the metaphysics of modality.

Supervised three PhD candidates at the University of St Andrews, on the metaphysics of vagueness (from Sept 2004 to Sept 2006); on the limits of possibility (from Sept 2005 to Sept 2006); and on counterfactual theories of causation (from Sept 2005 - Sept 2006).

I was acting supervisor of one PhD candidate on personal identity (Sept 2005 - Jan 2006 University of St Andrews). I was co-supervising two PhD candidates at the University of Nottingham in January-June 2010: one working on de re modality, and one working on the experimental philosophy challenge to reliance on intuitions.

Supervised five M. Litt dissertations, on the connectionist/language of thought debate; contemporary non-naturalism in ethics; and on truthmakers and moral realism (all S2004 University of St Andrews); on the semantic/metasemantic distinction (S2005 University of St Andrews), and one on analyticity and the a priori (S2006 University of St Andrews).

Currently on the dissertation committee of three other PhD students at the ANU in philosophy (1 from semester 2 2011, 2 from semester 2 2012) and one additional PhD student at ANU in the Centre for Arab and Islamic Studies (from semester 1 2012).
